Your Puppy's First Year

With Trupanion, you can protect your puppy nose-to-tail from new, unexpected injuries and illnesses.

Your sweet pup is sure to bring you plenty of laughs, cuddles, and playtime. But while you're enjoying bonding and getting to know your new best friend, it's important to take their health seriously. Talk with your veterinarian about your puppy's specific needs, including their vaccine and checkup schedule. In the meantime, there are key behaviors and developmental milestones to watch for as your puppy grows.

 DEVELOP	Birth to 4 weeks	Behavior to look for
 PREPARE	4 weeks to 3 months	Behavior to look for
 SOCIALIZE	3 to 6 months	Behavior to look for
 GROW	6 to 12 months	Behavior to look for
At around two to four weeks, puppies' eyes open and baby teeth break out. They also start developing sharp hearing and a keen sense of smell.	By eight weeks, your puppy will likely be ready to go home. They have developed a more inhibited bite, as well as newfound physical coordination. They may show signs of fear, so give them positive training.	At this stage, puppy behavior is most influenced by their mother and littermates. They begin to stand, walk, and run. Adult sleeping patterns and social interactions also start developing.
As your puppy starts teething, they'll feel the instinct to chew a lot to relieve the irritation in their gums. Provide plenty of acceptable chew toys to prevent unwanted munching on household items.	Your puppy will have learned some socialization skills, but be patient as they develop further. Now's a great time to discuss the best puppy food, feeding schedule, and training tips. It's also time to get pet medical insurance if you haven't already. ACTION: Take your pup to the vet!
Both male and female puppies start becoming more confident and adventurous. They will also develop signs of maturity, but different breeds can reach adulthood at different intervals. Check in with your veterinarian to keep your pup on the right track.	At four months, your puppy may experience a fearful stage as they socialize more and learn their place in the pack. Your puppy may also become more territorial. Continue positive training, and they'll outgrow this behavior in no time! ACTION: Start puppy training!
Expect your pup to continue testing or reinforcing their status in the household. It's important to keep them active and engaged at this time and promote healthy behaviors. ACTION: Talk to your veterinarian!

Fall Safety Tips for Dogs

A simple guide for a safe, surprise-free autumn with your pal.

Prevent back-to-school hazards

If you have children, now's the time to talk with them about keeping daily items like pencils, markers, glue sticks, and erasers safely stored and out of your pet's reach when not in use. School supplies can cause gastrointestinal upset or dangerous blockages if your dog eats them.

Keep pests out

As the weather gets cooler, rats and mice may seek out warmth and dry areas in your house. Wild rodents can carry a host of diseases that are dangerous for people and pets, so prevent pests by sealing loose windows and door frames as well as blocking any other possible entries. Always read anti-rodent products carefully and choose one that is nontoxic to dogs — traditional rodenticides are extremely harmful if your pet comes in contact.

Watch out for seasonal & airborne illnesses

Just like humans, pets are at risk of seasonal colds among other airborne illnesses. Canine flu and Bordatella (kennel cough) are two of the most prevalent in dogs, but they can affect other family pets (including cats) as well. Call your veterinarian if you notice coughing, wheezing, or fever in your pup, and keep them away from other pets as a precaution.

Dog sweaters are cute but can cause dogs to overheat if left on too long.

Rodenticides are one of the most common causes of pet poisonings every year.

Everyone gone at school or work? Consider scheduling a dog walker.

Leave Halloween horrors on TV

Planning on having a Halloween party or welcoming trick-or-treaters to your doorstep? All the sounds and excitement could end up being more than your dog can handle. Take your pup on a long walk first and give them a special chew toy as a distraction. Always make sure they have a safe, quiet room to retreat to if things get too overwhelming.

Don't play trick-or-treat with dog diets

While we humans like to indulge in a variety of treats during fall holidays, it's best to keep your dog's diet unchanged. Not only is giving them too many snacks unhealthy, but doing so can also make pets sick. You'll also want to keep all human treats well out of reach this time of year — chocolate and candy containing xylitol (a compound found in sugar-free items) are particularly toxic to dogs.

Take the magic out of mushrooms

Though your pet may see them as tasty snacks, some mushroom varieties can lead to serious problems if ingested. They also tend to thrive outdoors in moist fall weather. While there are mushrooms that won't make your dog sick, a few are deadly and require emergency care to prevent toxicity. It's best to just keep your pet away from any mushrooms you see in the first place.

Make your own leaf piles

Dogs tend to love romping through fall leaves, but take caution and don't let your pup jump into just any pile of foliage. Not only can these piles be full of sticks and the occasional gardening tool, but snakes and other creatures could be hiding within. Avoid the risk by making your own leaf piles for your dog to ensure they're in the clear.

Protect those paws

The weather starts getting chillier and wetter this time of year in a lot of areas, which means your pup's paws need extra attention. Gently clean and dry your dog's paws off every time you return indoors to prevent cracking and injury.

Puppies have 6.7x more claims for toxic mushroom ingestion than adult dogs.

Ticks can hide in leaf piles, so check dogs for pests after outside playtime.

Fall weather is unpredictable. Don't leave pets in cars or alone outdoors.
